Next Meeting, 3/10, at Ted's

If mother nature will allow and no other interference we will have a Rocky Forge hammer-in on Saturday March 10th t Ted's shop. Since all of us have been cooped up for several months it only seems fitting not to sit and watch a demonstrator, therefore we will have an open forge time to release our pent up frustrations and do some blacksmithing, tinsmithing, welding, grinding, blade work and socializing. Have a plan for what you want to accomplish, nothing I enjoy more than seeing individuals and groups working together on a project. It's called involvement and very important to your improvement as a metal worker. We have a lot of knowledge and experience in our group and a well-equipped shop to do what we want.

A friend of mine gave me a bunch of wood working tools, etc., some of which I am keeping and some I am passing on to the club for sale. As a result we will have a small auction following the iron in the hat drawing. The proceeds will go into the Rocky Forge treasury. Our in house auctioneer, Randy Padish, will conduct the auction and Carol Stout, a professional auction clerk for over 50 years, will keep track of the sales. Should be a fun time so bring your check books or extra cash. Also, if any of you have something you would like to contribute to the auction please do so. We keep trying to accumulate enough to take our building over at the Illiana Show grounds to the next step.

Lunch for the day will be a whole ham baking as we work, so please bring a side dish that would go good with the ham. As always Rocky Forge takes pride in our noon meals; let's keep that reputation alive.

Please keep Dan and Margie Michaels in your prayers as her father died in Florida last week.

See you Saturday. Ted and Carol Stout
